You will be encouraged as the Nevas read excerpts from the book Heavy and discuss questions like:

- How should we respond to suffering?
- Is there a purpose to suffering?
- How can we prepare our children to face adversity?

Shortly after the birth of his son in 2009, Todd Neva, then 39, experienced weakness in his left arm. His condition steadily worsened. In June 2010, upon referral, a neurologist diagnosed Todd with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, commonly known as Lou Gehrig's disease. ALS is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that leads to total paralysis and death, usually in 3 to 5 years.
